

Sunday Success

What are we celebrating this week?

Saying goodbye to Fiona

We want to say thank you and goodbye to Fiona Queen. Fiona leaves the programme at Tesco for a new opportunity. Fiona has 20 years of business and technical experience which has helped her foster key relationships and collaborate with the EDS team and the business functions on the Dakota project.

The team have really enjoyed working with you Fiona, and we hope to join forces again in future.

Jumping for Joy

Joy Brollo project manages the PLM (Product Lifecycle Management) cell for our client FitFlop on the Walkstar programme.

The first deliverable went live on the 11th of February. Eric is one of the stakeholders and provided Joy with some positive feedback:

"Thank you Joy. I think we could not have a better person doing this work than you. It is filled with so many challenges."

And a shout out for Nabeel

Nabeel Ijaz has been working on a backlog of high-risk alerts for VTB that are critical to business operations.

The MLRO has noticed a huge dent in January's figures, which was 100% due to Nabeel's efforts. He was awarded a bottle of champagne for all his hard work!

Keep up the great work!
